To Richest Prizes

Chess Makes Biggest Move

By Robert D. McFadden

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (NYT).—The largest cash prizes in the history of tournament chess-sums up to $152,000—were offered yesterday in the international competition for the site of this summer's world championship match between Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union and Bobby Fischer of the United States.

Fifteen bids-from ten nations and five cities ranging from $40,000 from Colombia to $152,000 from Belgrade were opened at the World Chess Federation headquarters in Amsterdam.

In the last 30 years, the largest prize for a chess match was the $12,000 put up in Buenos Aires last October when Fischer defeated Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union for the right to meet Spassky in a 24-game world champion-

Fischer, reached at his mid-Manhattan hotel, said the bids were "not bad—they'll have to do." He declined to comment on his preference for a site, saying this would be the subject of delicate negotiations in the coming weeks.

Beigrade's offer does not mean it will automatically be named the host city. The winner of the bidding will not be determined for another month. In accordance with procedures of the World Chess Federation, the bids will be sent to Pischer and Spassky, who will submit preference lists to Max Euwe, the World Federation president, by mid-January.

If their top preferences coincide, the matter will be decided. If they do not agree, which is more likely, negotiations will ensue. If these prove fruitless, Dr. Euwe will make a decision, subject to one veto by each player.

The Soviet Union submitted no bid, and the only bid from the United States—a $100,000 offer from the Chicago Convention Bureau is likely to be ruled out by Spassky. Neutral territory, thus, appears to be the likeliest.

were killed and 26 wounded, the spokesman said.
In Vientiane, Gen. Thoughan Knocksy, the Lao government spokesman, said two MiGs were sighted today near the village of Sala Phou Khoun, at the junction of north-south Highway 13 and east-west Highway 7, 115 miles north of Vientiane, apparently supporting Communist ground troops there.

Sala Phou Khoun, about 100 miles from the border of North Vietnam, marked the farthest penetration of MiGs into Laos,

U.S. and Saigon Accept Reds' Date For Paris Talks PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP) .- The Unit-

The United States first post-talks to Dec. 23, then to Dec. 30. The United States said it wanted to give the Communist side more time to consider its position and enter into "serious negotiations." But then both the Communist and allied sides postponed a Dec. 30 meeting because of a resumption of the air war over North Vietnam. Each side accused the

The four-week suspension of the conference is the longest since it began nearly three years ago.

President Georges Pompidou accused the U.S. military command today of taking measures in Vietnam which hamper the Paris peace talks and the American withdrawal. Speaking to journalists at a reception in the Elysee Palace, Mr. Pompidou said he did not expect any developments toward peace in Vietnam before President Nixon's visit to Peking, next month.

Controversial BBC Program On Ulster Goes on TV Tonight

By Bernard D. Nossiter

LONDON, Jan. 4 (WP).-Despite stiff opposition from the British and Ulster governments, the BBC will televise its inquiry into Northern Ireland tomorrow

The decision, announced today, appears at first glance to affirm the traditional independence of the state-financed broadcasting corporation, widely admired and envied throughout the world

Those close to the broadcasting scene, however, fear this may be a costly victory. In the last few months, BBC staffers have been complaining with increasingly stronger words that their freedom to report the crisis has been curtailed through se' -censorship by sensitive television executives. U.S. Appeals Leftists' Suit On GI'Spies'

By Fred P. Graham

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (NYT). -The Justice Department asked the Supreme Court yesterday to throw out a suit by political radicals and anti-war groups which seeks to curb Army surveillance of civilian political activities.

In a brief filed by Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, the government asserted that the courts should leave it to the executive branch and to Congress to keep military intelligence units

Mr. Griswold asked the Supreme Court to overrun a lower court's holding that the dissident plaintiffs (most of whom were subiects of the Army's stryeillance) can sue to stop the surveillance and to make the Army destroy its dossiers on their activities. 1,000 Agents Involved

The suit grew out of revelations in the press and in Senate hearings last year that some 1,000 Army and other government in-telligence agents in 300 offices across the country had kept tabs on such diverse civilian organizations as civil-rights groups, community-action associations, church groups and Earth Day observers.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled that they were entitled to a trial to prove, if they could, that the Army's surveillance was unconstitutional and should be halted by a court order. The Justice Deartment headed off an immediate trial by appealing yesterday to the Supreme Court.

'Generalized' Dispute In the brief filed yesterday, past Mr. Griswold insisted that the represented "generalized ma har grievances" against a government by a court. He said that the dispute presents no "case or controversy" for the courts to hear, as required by the Constitution, because there rizes is no specific dispute between these plaintiffs and the government. He added that the political activists who brought the suit lack standing to challenge the surveillance because they admit that their future plans for demonstrations and dissent will not "chilled" by the Army's activities.

legedly adverse position of the United States. "It is this administration's objective to insure that we never fall into second place," William Baroody jr., special assistant to Mr. Laird, said in a letter to congressmen, that the Pentagon ralessed yesterday.

It Speaks for Laird

The letter represents Secretary Laird's views, a Pentagon spokes-man said. Other points the letter made included:

• The United States "still has substantial numerical advantage" over the Soviet Union in nuclear warheads that can be delivered.

• "We are confident that the Soviet Union does not have an effective 'first-strike' nuclear attack capability against our strategic forces today." First strike in that context means the ability destroy another power's longrange weapons before they can be fired. Shortly after taking office in 1969, Mr. Laird told Congress that the Soviet Union was going for first-strike capa-The Baroody letter retreated from that position by declaring that the Russians have such capability today "but that we must insure against this possibility developing—or even the prospect of it developing—in

• The Nixon administration is not allowing U.S. strategic forces "to stagnate" during the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, Improvements proceeding during the talks, Mr. Baroody said, included putting multiple warheads on 550 of the 1,000 Minuteman missiles: deploying the anti-ballistic missile defense; converting 31 of the 41 Polaris submarines to carry the larger Poseidon missile; developing a large submarine to succee the Polaris and the B-1 bomber to succeed the B-52.

300 U.S. Tourists May Visit Red China on Luxury Cruise

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (NYT).-About 300 American tourists may Thomas Cook & Son, the comvisit the People's Republic of China next month,

The Americans are among 1,100 passengers booked aboard the liner S.S. France, which begins a 91-day luxury world cruise tomorrow at Le Havre. The trip into China, which will be open to all passengers on the France. will start from Hong Kong when the vessel arrives there late in February.

The group will journey to Canton, probably by special train, spend two nights there, then fly to Singapore to catch up with the ship. French Line officials here said that they have been working on the trip with the official Chinese Agency for International Tourism Jean-Claude Potier, general manager of the company for the U.S.A., Canada and Mexico, said that the idea for the side trip was worked out only a few weeks ago and that details had not yet been completed. Chinese Proposal

Mr. Potier said that the Chinese had proposed that the group leave for Canton as soon as the France arrived in Hong Kong but that an attempt was being made to give the passengers a day to shop in that free port and return to the ship before departing for Canton, about 100 miles away, He emphasized however. that the trip would take place on whatever days the Chinese offered.

Mr. Potier said that he was awaiting word on the proposed change in scheduling and on the maximum of visitors the Chinese will accept. "We understand Canton has 1,500 beds for foreign visitors," Mr. Potier said, "and we hope they will take everyone on the France who wants to make the trip.'

If only a limited number of the group were accepted, he said, the passengers will be asked to draw lots to determine who goes. pany handling all shore excursion arrangements for the world trip, for all tour members. Mr. Potier noted that the Chinese had not yet indicated how much the two-day excursion would cost. He said that he doubted that many of the cruise passengers would argue over the price, since they are paying anywhere from $7,600 for a single cabin to nearly $100,000 for grand luxury suite for five.

Sheikh Mujibur's Future

thousands who were killed in East Pakistan, Sheikh Mujibur Rahman should still be alive. And not only that, but should be, apparently, on the verge of unconditional release from Pakistani imprisonment, with every prospect of heading the government of Bangladesh.

Sheikh Mujibur was undoubtedly a potent political force in presecession East Pakistan. But he was also a symbol—and that may be more important. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi made his release a primary consideration in the diplomacy which preceded the brief war, just as his arrest by former President Yahya Khan signalled the beginning of the bloody repressions in East Pakistan. And it is clear that there are elements in Pakistan who hope that the sheikh will provide a link between Pakistan and Bangladesh on his return among the Bengalis.

As for the Bangladesh, Sheikh Mujibur's role as head of the Awami League, which swept East Pakistan in the last elections there, would inevitably make him a figure of supreme importance in the new state.

It is rather curious that, with all the This importance is enormously enhanced by the symbolic values attached to him by his imprisonment as well as by the solicitous attentions of both Pakistan and India.

> Sheikh Mujibur's problem will be to live up to the hopes that have become attached to his name. As political leader of Bangladesh he would have to attempt to solve the tremendous difficulties-economic, political, social and religious-which afflict that region. And in external relations, he has a very large debt to India, which could conflict with any impulses he may have as a Moslem and a Pakistani.

It is not impossible that Sheikh Mujibur's release will be delayed until President Bhutto has tested further the possibility of holding him a hit longer, as hostage for some concessions by India. But the announcement that Mujibur would be released unconditionally has diminished this possibility sharply. It would seem that the shelkh will shortly be transported back to Dacca, and that the real imponderables of his future lie in his ability to cope with the thronging dilemmas of his creation: Bangladesh.

Questions for Nixon

Mr. Nixon said Sunday night on television, in effect, that he will continue to bomb North Vietnam in the hope that it will cave in and release our POWs; that if Hanoi does not cave in by next November, he will offer a total American withdrawal in return for release of POWs; and that if Hanoi rejects this offer he will publish the record of negotiations and try to make the best of it. If we have read it right, this is an incredibly cynical policy.

First, the hombing: The President's defense of the latest spree was transparent. He said the enemy had stepped up infiltration. (Mr. Laird, just last week, claimed only that an infiltration road had been built—and that a year ago.) He said the enemy had shelled Saigon on Dec. 19. (There was a two-rocket salvo.) Invoking the Johnson bombing-halt "understanding" he himself had specifically repudiated in December 1970, he said Hanoi had fired on reconnaissance planes in violation of it. Although bad weather forced some pilots back last week for fear of hitting the wrong targets, and the same bad weather has delayed assessment of the damage, Mr. Nixon insisted that only military targets were hit and that "the results have been yery, very effective."

In fact, every past survey has found that bombing North Vietnam stiffened morale and interrupted the flow of supplies southward only minimally, if at all. Why, then, does Nixon bomb? Candor would have had him concede that American opinion and South Vietnamese caution prohibit more "time buying" forays of the sort made into Cambodia in 1970 and into Laos in 1971: therefore, to keep pressure on Hanol while American ground troops are being withdrawn, he sees no other alternative. What he did say was that if Hanoi wants the American role in the war to end, it will have to negotiate or face more bombing (and a residual American force of from 25,000 to 30,000 troops indefinitely). "Does the enemy want the United States to withdraw from Vietnam, or doesn't it?" In other words, the old and thoroughly discredited thumb-

And what about negotiation? Mr. Nixon was asked whether the United States had offered to set a withdrawal date in return for release of all POWs; although the administration has in the past derided this concept, the President himself acknowledged Sunday night that it is the core negotiating issue, At first, Mr. Nixon dodged a direct answer, replying that a "United States senator" (McGovern) had inquired and Hanai had said "no deal." Later, however, in a response relterated by the White House Monday, he confirmed he had not made such an offer. "I would say this, looking to the future," he said, "that when we come down to the end, as far as our own involvement in Vietnam is concerned, the question of whether or not they will return our prisoners in exchange for a total American withdrawal is one they will have a chance to answer." In other words, he is willing to make the offer-but not now.

The key question, of course, is when-and why not now? Mr. Nixon denied that he had "delayed the ending of the war until the election year," but the suspicion does not evaporate so easily. He has told us he expects that the man elected in 1972 won't even get a majority of the vote, so why would he jeopardize his own re-election in a tight race by letting the war run on? For that matter, why would he let the war run on that much longer, to November? The evident answer to that-or at least, the only one we can imagine—is to give Saigon more time to be ready to fight on alone. To be sure, fewer and fewer Americans believe that the POWs should remain captives longer for the benefit of President Thien, which may explain why the President said nothing Sunday night about the fate of the Salgon government, leaving comment on this sensitive matter to a press aide, a day later.

If this is not how Mr. Nixon plans to end the war-by an arbitrary decision that Salgon can finally "hack it," keyed to a total withdrawal prisoner release offer-then how in heaven's name does he intend to end the war? In truth, there is no other way. Vietnamese have been fighting for 40-odd years to kick foreigners out of Vietnam-first the Japanese, then the French, now the Americans. Is there a single rational observer who believes that they will relinquish their ace, the prisoners, before they are assured of success? Mr. Nixon can bomb and bomb and bomb, the way Mr. Johnson bombed and bombed, and with, we would suspect, about the same results, in terms of encouraging the North Vietnamese to 'leave their neighbors alone." In fact, the record is so abundantly clear on this point, in the Pentagon Papers and elsewhere, that it is an insult to the intelligence, if not the integrity, of the President and Dr. Kissinger not to look elsewhere for an honest explanation of our current war policy.

The place to look, we would judge, is in the administration's private estimate of what would happen to the morals and to the military security of the South Vietnamese if we were to offer today the deal which the President is so plainly prepared to make once we have worked our way down, by steady withdrawals, to a modest residual force. We are, in other words, buying time for President Thieu when what we ought to be saying is that we have already bought him-with the lives of our men, by the tens of thousands, and by our wounded in the hundreds of thousands, and by our money in the billions-fully as much time as he is entitled to by any fair and reasonable test. International Opinion

The Rhodesian Commission

The Pearce Commission, which is supposed to test the "acceptability" of the proposed settlement to the African population, is no better equipped to do so than would have been a posse of UN returning officers Honest though all its members undoubtedly are, they will find what they are looking for, since the vast majority of Rhodesian Africans are unlikely to have any views to offer them on the matter.

But if their report is to have any value at all, it will depend on the authority they are able to give to it. A team composed almost entirely of past and present government officers, all white, seems to hark back to the vanished age of colonial paternalism. If no African was invited to join it, an important propanganda point was missed: if none accepted, the implications are even more disturbing.

The New U.S. Asia Policy: II

By C. L. Sulzberger

DARIS.—The only two capitals with significant diplomatic leverage on Hanoi's policy are Moscow and Peking. For a long time U.S. diplomacy sought to prevail upon Russia to bring its influence to bear in order to produce what Washington would term an acceptable Indochina settlement. Having failed, American hopes now turn to

This appears to be one important aspect of the new U.S. Asia policy. In 1967-58, the Johnson administration hoped Soviet pressure would help produce a negotiated compromise and Moscow played a role in bringing Hanoi and the Viet Cong to the Paris peace talks. Washington has felt disappointed since then. Russlan aid to North Vietnam, above by sea, has increased substantially. Moreover, the Kremlin indicates a desire to form a ring of pro-Soviet states in Southeast Asia, replacing U.S. influence there in order to squeeza China.

Suspicion Soviet authority in Hanoi mounted, at China's expense, as North Vietnam came to rely on the U.S.S.R. for 80 percent of its arms. The trend accelerated after Ho Chi Minh's death. It was helped by traditional suspicion of all Chinese regimes by all Vietnamese regimes. Slowly and for wholly differing reasons, U.S. policy and Chinese policy assumed one parallel characteristic—a desire to prevent Southeast Asia from becoming a Soviet sphere of influence. China and America could disagree on virtually everything else but they agreed on this fundamental.

While Washington and Peking were in secret contact prior to presidential side Henry S. Kissinger's first China visit, a struggle for the succession to old Mao Tse-tung was under way. At least one faction involved favored friendship with Moscow. When this faction was defeated and the group led by Chou En-lai took over beside the fading Mao, a new opportunity war presented to Washington.

This reality may embarrass both of them but it is inescapable. Washington once sought to attract India into an Indochina role at least as far east as Cambodia, where there had been historic Indian cultural contacts. But even then, when our relations were warmer than today. India showed no interest. And Moscow's subsequent concern with peace in the area proved --from an American vie point.

Nixon caught a lot of flak from American and foreign critics for his awkwardly expressed pro-Pakistan bias during the re-cent Indian war. Official rhetoric was lamentable but Washington was coldly aware that India couldn't help us in Indochina and Russia wouldn't.

Moreover, for reasons explained in a previous column, Soviet weight was already massive in New Delhi. One can only deduce that all these factors together persuaded the President to take a short-range beating on Pakistan in order to further his long-range goal of seeking a compromise Indochina peace, thus re-furbishing his position at home

Policy Shifts Emphasis on China as a potential friend required several shifts in U. S. policy. The old tie to Taiwan has become considerably frayed. SEATO is gone-with France out, East Pakistan (Pakistan's link to Southeast Asia) independent, and Australia contemplating a new look, Obviously Peking isn't going to ostracise Hanoi just because Nixon is coming. Nevertheless, while North Vietnam depends primarily on Russia for weapons. it relies on China for food. North Vietnam is short of rice and this condition has worsened since last year's disastrous floods. If there is delay in Chinese grain shipments, Hanoi's military operations could be affected. The rice paddles of South Vietnam's delta were out off following campaigns there and in Cambodia.

A Hard Election Year By Joseph Kraft.

Tough Contests Forecast

WASHINGTON.—Tis the season for declaring presidential candidacies. And the rich crop of announcements makes two things

There is going to be a tough contest for the Democratic nomination. There is also going to be a tough contest for the general election in November.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Edmund Muskie looks to be way ahead. He has presidential stat-ure, strong appeal to independent voters and a strong organization. He offers Mr. Nixon less of a target than any other Democrat. He holds the middle position on the issues, and if he can win the early primaries he will be home

But can he win the primaries? The one weakness of the Muskie operation is the senator's ability as a campaigner. Those who have trailed him around find that he cannot turn on a crowd, that he tends to tire, that he does not ease up for small occasions, or rise to big ones. Head to head with Mr. Nixon, the senator shows to great advantage. But until he gets the nomination, Sen. Muskle has to be accounted vulnerable to strong Democratic campaigners.

Appeal of Lindsay

Two of these are in the race for sure. One is the mayor of New York John Lindsay is an appealing figure of great magnitude, itieless in energy, unshakable in self-confidence, and with a strong case to make. He has the money and the public relations knowhow to get the case across.

To be sure, Mayor Lindsey has impunerable troubles too. He is a Democrat of recent vintage. His argument that the country needs to loosen the centers of authority is dubious—the more so since it comes from a man who blew the fix in New York and then didn't know what to put in its place. In the end, these liabilities will probably deny Mayor Lindsay the nomination. But nobody should imagine that he will not make a strong race.

Then, of course, there is Sen. Hubert Humphrey. He is also not without blemishes. He is a vet-eran of the political wars, and close up, at least, he looks to be past his prime-an old model.

But Sen. Humphrey has plenty of friends all over the country and money enough to go the distance. The latest Gallup Poll shows him far more popular with Democrats than Sen. Muskie, He has a new organization more ef-ficient than in his previous campaign efforts. Moreover, he is a truly great campaigner, tried and tested and with an unrivaled love of the political game. The campaign he ran in 1968, considering the enormous hundleaps, has to rank a the cone of the most phenomenal it. American history. In the end, th Democratic choice will probable be between San. Humphrey and Sen. Muskie.

On the Republican side, President Nixon has the nomination locked up. The challenge in the New Hampahire primary from Rep. Pete McCloskey on the progressive side of the party and from Rep. John Ashbrook on the conservative side should help him if anything. They will raise in-terest in the campaign, and show that Mr. Nixon is a centrist.

As to the fall election, Mr. Nixon now has the momentum of events. He will be visibly acting as President on two occasions rich with drama. There will be the China visit in February and the Moscow visit in May probably accompanied by the signing of an agreement limiting strategic arms which Mr. Nixon is sure to call historic Perhaps even rightly so. After that he has a further chance to improve his standing by the choice of a vice-president the polls show him doing nice. ly, he can go again with Spin Agnew—a comfortable choice in Mr. Nixon and the Republicar party. If the polls show him to be in trouble, the President can pice a more illustrious running mate Secretary of the Treasury John Connally is a particularly filely choice in that event. The recent monetary negotiations showed that Mr. Nixon can, as many doubted, handle him with ease

Not Popular

Still there is a central fact that not a popular President, Not man to warm the cockles of the electorate's heart. His share of the national vote, in the polis a-in the 1968 election, does not g over the 50 percent mark And he is particularly unloved by young voters, who are an un-certain factor this year, and in the most populous states.

Furthermore, the course is events during the coming year may not be at all rosy. The arm agreement with the Russians is almost sure to be only half a lost The China trip will probably haw as its main effect a dispelling e the illusion that somehow the Vietnam war can be settled in Peking. The war is apt to contimue with mounting intensity around election time. And while the economy as a whole seems to be picking up, unemployment which appears to be the crutia-figure, is falling very slowly.

In these circumstances, the 197: election is apt to be what most recent presidential elections, unskewed by a dramatic personality have been. That is, very, very

The Anderson Papers

By Tom Wicker

NEW YORK.—The remarkable series of documentary excerpts now being published by the columnist Jack Anderson is a public service of the first order. Since the authenticity of these documents has not been denied by an obviously discomfited White House, they provide a valuable glimpse into the making of policy -in this case, a policy that to many Americans seems disastrous.

More than that, the Anderson papers suggest the extent to which the government can, and does, mislead the public in the pursuit of what the President and his advisers may decide is the national interest. They show again the abundant use of security classification to keep the public in ignorance. And they demonstrate that publication is one of the few remaining checks on the foreign policy powers of the imperial presidency.

The papers make one thing perfectly clear—that President Nixon, with the aid of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, set out deliberately to put the United States into a at whatever cost. "We are not sition of support for Pakistan trying to be evenhanded," said. Kissinger to high administration officials.

Overlooked

That might have been a proper course for a nation opposing, say, Hitler's expansionism. In the complex situation on the Indian subcontinent, Pakistan's obvious weakness—if nothing class—made self-defeating a policy of all-out opposition to India. That the brutal excesses of Pakistani repression of the Bengalis were overlooked, to the point where all aid to India was to be suspended while clandestine means of arming the Pakistanis were sought, is simply repugnant to the American conscience—or ought to be. Besides, nobody in Washington bothered to make clear to the public that Washington was not being "evenhanded." condemnation of India sounded more like a considered fair analysis than a deliberate, purposeful policy; and that is the kind of swampy ground in which credibility gaps are dug.

That is even more true of the instance documented by Anderson in which Kissinger and others sought to transfer to Pakistan arms already delivered to Jordan -while maintaining the public posture that arms were not being supplied to either participant in the war! That is entirely worthy of the men who brought you "reinforced protective reaction."

So was the public pretense that an American cerrier task force in the Eay of Bengal was there to evacuate threatened Americans, if it is true (as alleged in the Anderson papers) that its sctual mission was to divert Indian ships and planes and thus to weaken the Indian drive against East Pakistan.

Nor do the various stories now being advanced to explain these and other administration actions seem to hold much water. If, for instance, the task force actually was there to stop India from overrunning West Pakistan, too, se administration leaks now sug-gest, nothing in India's actual behavior toward West Pakistan seems to have warranted such action; nor is it likely that one carrier task force could have been so effective a deterrent; and, in any case, the American people still were being misled about the deployment of their forces.

And if, as other articles have suggested, Nixon's intent really was to solidify an American alignment with China, also #= supporter of Pakistan, against the Soviet Union, the curious result are that Soviet power on the subcontinent is vastly extended: as a result, and American influence in India is at its lowest ebb: If we now are closer to China than we were, what suggestion was there in their acrimonious history that Peking and Moscov were likely to be soon reconciled. In order to gain face in China did we really need to lose our shirts in India? Facade of Secrecy

Thus, behind the facade of Se crecy and security that shields purposes and activities in the world, a policy that was dubiou at best was shaped to Nixon's personal dictates, and presented to the public as something other than what it was. But the value able documents Anderson has been publishing must have been supplied to him by someone wife access to them who believed eithe that that manner of making policy, or the policy itself, of both, ought to be exposed to the American people. How else could that be done except by publication? And t it is to be maintained, as the Nixon administration did in the Pentagon Papers case, that stamping "top secret" on the government's memos and minute makes them immune to publication and superior to the Pirst Amendment, then security classification becomes an all-moon, passing means of concealing whatever the government want

Coming Up: Russian Holiday Season

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, Jan. 4 (IRT).—The mysteries of Russian custom— which include blouses that button under the ear and cigarettes with long paper holders and a minimum of tobacco—extend to the calendar. The October Revolution took place in November by our calendar. According to old-style Russian reckoning (still observed in Paris) Christmas, 1971, and New Year, 1972, are still before us.

Russian Christmas will be on Jan, 6 and Russian New Year on Jan. 12, and either of these evenings or indeed any evening --might be the time to celebrate at the latest Russian cabaret: Reginskaia (128 Rue La Boétie), (it is open all night every night). The Russian nightclub first appeared in Paris, historians record, during La Belle Epoque, but it was in the 1920s, with the sudden invasion of emigrés from the Soviet Union that it loomed so large that Pigalle and the boulevards began to resemble the Nevsky Prospect after dark Many of those transplanted Petrograd boites vanished in due course, the supply surpassing the demand. Gone are countless Slavic gyp joints and gone, too, are some of pleasant memory: the sunctionis Don Juan, the regal Casanova with its golden cou, La Maisonnette Russe (the former Korniloff), and Sheherazade (immortalized in Remarque's novel, "Arch of Triumph") survive and continue to flourish in the lavish grand duke manner. Magic Wand Regine, queen of the Parislan night, has waved her magic wand over Reginskaia, her latest crea-

The cuisine would have made the czar's mouth water. Michel Guerard, blue-ribben chef of the famed Pot-au-Feu, has been engaged to preside over the kitchen. He has concocted several delicious dishra to follow the zakouskis, Beluga caylar and borscht. High among these is the ragout of morilles, fole gras, putés, sweetbreads. There is a troiks sherbet to conclude the feast, one equal, Russian gourmets in exile say, to a repost at the labled Acquarium of St. Petersburg.

Of the present-day French songatresses, none is more enchanting than Colette Dereal. whose blonde beauty and lovely voice are the outstanding features of the new program of the dinner-spectacle at La Belle Epoque (35 Rue des Petits-Champs). Her writing and per-forming of a popular television serial, "Le Manège Port-Barcarès" have kept her from personal appearances. Her return in person is a delight. She sings some of her old songs and some new ones of her own composition, one a wistful number about the passing of the years, slightly out of keeping with her youthful looks. But all she does is completely be-

During the evening's course Robert Rocca has his sub-acid say on topical affairs and public figures, and Paul Préboist enacts an exasperated schoolteacher at his blackboard, dismissing pupil after pupil from the classroom. Literto and Angelo, expert musicians, strum their guiiars, and funniest of all is Pierre Dorls, who arrives with a plaster over his month. "Excuse me." he announces, removing the muzzie, "tut I've just been on television." All that follows would never have been heard on the airwaves. This moon-faced Doris with bland smirk in his number spares no one from his tongue-lashing. Discrimination is banned from his ferccious monologue; he hates everyone. And the house roars at his ribald remarks, at his below-the-belt cracks, and his joyful mud-splat-tering. He is the Céline of the chansonniers.

However, Clive Barnes of The New York Times was strongly in favor: "It is a good, controversial, political play—it excites the mind and certainly deserves to be seen," he says. The subject of the drama concerns events in the Congo 10 years ago: the assassination of black nationalist Patrice Lumumba, and the death of UN secretary-general Dag Hammarskibld in a mysterious airplane crash. "Fun City," co-authored by nightclub and television personality Joan Rivers, her husband, Edgar Rosenberg, and Lester Co-lodny, got mixed and unfavorable notices from The Times's Mel Gussow and William Glover of AP. Its chief problem, according to Gussow, is one of "aspiration and of design." Miss Rivers is a "deft comedy writer," says Gussow, "but as a playwright, she at least this time out-lacks a play. Fun City doesn't build. It stands stock-still, laughing at itself. It begins funny, but grows less funny. When it stops-rarely -for a breath, it runs out of steam." Glover came out strongly against the play: "If oneliners are to sustain a whole show," says the AP critic, "they better maintain a darn high average, which is the first ser-ious flaw in Tun City.' Some of the humor is downright forced. dubious and, a couple of times, desperate." The other big lapse is in the storyline, Glover says. "It is the old boy-girl potboiler wherein lovers must furiously quarrel before reunion. The big switch here, see, is that it is the man who wants to regularize seven years of impromptu togetherness with a wedding " As the first Broadway arrival of the New Year, "Fun City," directed by Jerry Adler, is playing at the

Mr. Vogelsang, 52, has been head of Krupp since its 1988 transformation from a family-held concern into a limited liabilly public corporation. In the ending four years, he has won the chief tredit for resolving Krupt's financial difficulties of the 1990s and putting the firm

The terse announcement issued from Kritto headquarters in Essen gave no explanation of why Mr Vogelsang had decided to quit with five years left to run on his contract.

Power Struggle

However, industry sources said the reasons appeared to be bound up in a power struggle between Mr. Vogelsang and Berthold Beits, Krupp's chaliman of the board and the man who preceded Mr. Vogelsang as general man-

Dollar Flood Helps Swell U.K. Assets

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UPI) .- About $1 billion (4380 million) flooded into Britain in the first two weeks of December when international financiers suspected a dollar devaluation and shifted their funds into other currencles, official figures showed today.

Expressed in dollar terms, Britsin's gold and other official reserves increased by $1.01 billion in December to stand at $6.583 billion at the end of the month.

The sterling value of the reserves climbed by £204 million tohit 22.526 billion at the end of

GNP Growth Likely to Slow In France, Survey Reports

PARIS, Jan. 4 (Reviets).— France will no longer go it alone with a high growth rate in 1972 compared with most other in-dustrial countries, but 1972 should see a slew international ectionic recovery, according to a survey in the monthly economic review L'Expansion

However, the slow recovery Will continue to be overshadowed by monetary unrest, inflation and growing unemployment, the magazine said.

France's gross national product should progress by some 4.7 per-cent in volume terms, L'Espansion says, compared to 5.2 percent last year and an official government forecast of 5.2 per-

In general, Prance will suffer more from the economic slowdown in West Germany than it in the United States, the survey said.

Rising Unemployment

Unemployment will increasingly be a problem through 1972 and the survey anticipates that at the end of the year some 600,000 Frenchmen will be out of work, representing 3 percent of the working population. France's exports should grow by some 5.5 percent through the year (9.5 percent in 1971)—a rate which is adequate to maintain the country's position in inter-national markets, L'Expansion

With imports increasing by an estimated 6.1 percent in 1972 (8.3 percent in 1971), the foreign trade account will deteriorate slightly but remain basically in bolance, the survey said.

Retail price inflation will be around 5 percent compared with 6 percent last year.

At a result of the more favorable 1972 prospects, L'Expansion says it expects an upward fevision of investment plans. Productive investment private and public sectors should rise by 5.4 percent in volume terms through the year compared with 4.9 percent in 1971, it says.

Demestic consumption will remain the main support of the country's 1973 expansion and the survey foretasts a progression of 5 percent against 5.8 percent last year. Wage eathers in general will see a 3.5 percent increase in purchasing power (4.2 percent in 1971),

Gold Prices Set Records In Europe

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Reuters) — The London free market price of gold today was at its highest since March 1968 and bullion was also considerably more expensive in Zirich, Paris and Hohy Kong.
Today's London price of $44.35
'an ounce was 35 cents higher linan yesterday and took the rate up to its highest since establishment of the two-tier system in Acres 1969 follows:

March 1968 following the collapse of the international gold pool. The London price of bullion has now gone up by more than 60 cents an ounce in 24 hours. Usually a price rise of this size indicates mass trading, but today dealers said that a feature of the market was the small amounts being traded. The fact that such small deals were sufficient to influence the market price by 35 cents an outlies suggested that only a small amount of gold is reaching the market.

Dealers agreed that the most likely emplanation was that the new demand, which led to the price rise, is a spin-off from the ecent international currency realignments. In Paris, dealers stepped up

In December alone, car output in U.S. plants barely edged the year-earlier total, reaching 606,917 units as compared with 601,483 in December, 1970, when GM was just coming out of its strike.

GM was the only domestic manufacturer to show an increase in December 1971 car production as compared with the prior year. The No. 1 automaker built 336.787 cars in its U.S. plants last month, up from 318,821 a year earlier. Ford's December production reached 161,058, off from 167,457 the prior year. Chrysler Gorp. output in the U.S. dipped to 92-862 from 95,413 a year earlier, while American Motors Corp. was down about 1,500 units to 18,200 from 19,793.

GM was also the big gainer for the full year, building 4,883,007 passenger cars in its U.S. assembly facilities versus 2,979,248 in 1970. Ford output climbed to 2.176,332 from 2,017,152, while Chrysler barely edged up for the year to 1,287,597 from 1,280,510. American Motors produced approximately 235,500 cars in the U.S. during 1971, off from 276,110

GM to Close Plant

Named in the warrants are David C. Bevan, Charles J. Hodge, a Wall Street broker, and O. F. Lassiter, a retired Air Force general and founder of Executive Jet Aviation Inc.

The charges against the three stem from Penn Central's $21 million investment in Executive Jet, a charter airline based in Columbus, Ohio, and their connection with Penphil, a private investment club which made $1.7 million in profits by investing in properties that the railroad had Volkswagen says group output increased 6.5 percent to a record 236 million units last year from 2.21 million in 1970. Group sales increased 5 percent to 2.32 million from 2.21 million the previous year. Parent company production rose 5.8 percent to 1.72 million units last year from 1.82 million, with export sales accounting for 1.15 million, compared with 1.06 million in 1970. In contrast, domestic sales fell 3 percent, VW said.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Volkswagen Group Output Rises

ENI Names Head of Three Units

Franco Briatico has been named president of Agip Petroleum (USA), Isvet SpA and Societa Italiana per l'Olsodotto Transalpino, Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi (ENI) reports. The three concerns are controlled by ENI, of which Mr. Bristico had been director general of public relations. The ENI announcement said he would not be replaced in that post, but that public relations, including management of Agenzia Giornalistica Italia, would be handled directly by Raffaele Girotti, ENI president. The three offices that Mr. Briatico took over had been

Esso in Pact With Algeria

Standard Oil of New Jersey has signed a $400million crude oil agreement with Algeria, an Esso spokesman reports. The deal will involve an average of more than 100,000 barrels a day over a four-year period beginning this year and increasing through 1975, he says. Further détails of the agreement were not immediately available. The agreement is the second huge contract signed by an American company with Algeria in recent weeks. Commonwealth Oil Refining has an $800-million pact for crude oil and products deliveries over a 25-year period. Arbed Sets Short-Time Work

Arbed of Belgium says it has decided to lay off part of the workforce at its Gentlerngge and Merelbeke wireworks for the five Mondays of January. Noting that normal output at the two plants runs at about 11,000 tons a month, a spokesman for the company said he could give no estimate of the extent to which production would be affected. The steel company cited the current economic situation as the reason for the Philips on Computer Rumors:

Philips of the Netherlands says it cannot confirm Amsterdam Stock Exchange rumors that an announcement of a computer link-up with Siemens is imminent. A spokesman for the company said Philips has not been approached by Siemens. But he added that Philips supports Buropean computer cooperation. Last week a Siemens spokesman said Siemens was engaged in a series of talks with major European com-puter firms, such as Cie. Internationale pour l'Informatique of France, International Com-puters of Britain, AEG-Telefunksu and Nixdorf Computer of West Germany, and Philips.

THE WALL STREET FREE... the current issue of The Wall Street Transcript. Deadline: January 19

The Transcript may be Wall Street's most helpful newspaper. So you can find out for yourself, we'll send you the current issue free. (That's a $10 newsstand value.) There's no obligation—we're taking the chance that once you see a copy you'll want to

The Transcript is a weekly newspaper that covers the economy and the stock market. It publishes not just one viewpoint or one set of recommendations but hundreds, gathered from analysts all over the country.

(The Transcript itself gives no investment advice.)

There are about 70 pages in every issue, conveniently indexed. You get about 2,000 company analyses a year, more than 1,500 chart and technical reports, about 300 industry surveys—all from leading brokers and analysts. You get about 500 management reports to the security analyst societies. About 2,000 detailed write-ups on new issues. And a great deal more.

If you haven't been reading The Transcript, we think it's time you started. To get your free copy simply send us this ad (but be sure to attach your business card or letterhead).

North is entitled to get excited on the diagramed deal after his partner opened one spade, but Blackwood was unsuitable in view of his diamond void. If the North-South partnership is not using any specialized conventions, the best response to one spade is perhaps three hearts.

South's cue-bid of six hearts over the five-hearts overcall was an attempt to show two sees and a void, and North optimistically decided that there should be a good play for a grand siam. Playing double-dummy, there no problem about putting up the club ace and dropping the king. But how should South proceed from there? The declarer found the solu-tion when he entered his hand at the second trick by leading the club nine to his ten. Next he led a low spade, and won in the dummy with the nine. He entered his hand with another club lead, and finessed again in spades. The position was then NORTH ♣ K76 ♥ AJ965 EAST ♦ — Ö Q1087 ♦ Q1087 SOUTH 4 A54

IN A FREE STATE

By V.S. Natpaul. Knopf. 256 pp. $5.95.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

Naipaul's writings about his native Trinidad have tolerant amusement. His is an nate the other attitude that is affectionate without being overly kind. In 'The Mystic Masseur, "A House for Mr. Biswas" and in some of the ing was not always gentle, that there was present an irritation with the land and its people, an impatience with shuggish folk-ways. The endless striving for improvement was made to seem hollow, fruitless. On his own, Mr. Naipaul made no secret of his alienation from his native island. "When I was in the fourth form," he wrote in "Middle Passage," "I wrote a vow on the endpapers of my Kennedy Revised Latin Primer to leave within five years, I left after six. And for many years afterwards in England, falling asieen in bed-sitters with the electric fan on I had been awakened by the night-mare that I was back in tropical Trinidad." That sounds final.

His new book of stories, "In a Free State," winner of Eng-land's Booker prize ($12,000), takes the story one step further. How does the expatriate fare after he leaves the island? Is he better off in a bed-sitter than in a wooden house off a dusty road on a tropical island? The suitor doesn't quite put it that way. He lifts the argument above and beyond geographical circumstances, beyond material success and social position. These new stories focus en the failure of heart, on the animal-like cruelty man exhibits to other men and on the avarice that as Chancer's Pardoner told, is the root of all evil. Are we in a free state really? Or are or-ganisms driven by the violent compulsions within us? In England, a brother takes advantage of a brother, patrons of a shopkeeper, one group of workers of another group. Or a ship to Alexandria, two Lebanese, with the help of a German who in other droumstances would not have soiled his hands with them, turn on a poor ratty tramp. In Egypt, an Egyptian flunky lays his whip to the backs of children scrounging for uneaten sandwiches thrown on the sand by Italian tourists. What the au-thor is saying is that neither customs nor color nor culture seems able to quiet that impulse to destruction, that murderous tonness that is so much part of our makeup.

The longest story in the book, the title story, is set in an African colony, once British, now given its freedom. Two tribes, long enemies, are struggling to rule the freed state. The head one is the king; the head of the other is the president. With the help of the army, the president wins out. The point is that in spite of modern trapping (president vs. monarch) the contest is the continuation of age-old rivalries by other means. often enough been touched with Each tribe is happy to extermi-

> At a time when the crisis is coming to a head, two white English civilians, a civil servant and his woman passenger, are returning to the safety of their compound along a road that is far from safe. That road becomes another Mississippi in "Huck Finn," another wine-dark sea of the Odyssey. For the adventures on that highway reveal the new state to the occupants of the car and themselves to each other. An old English colonel, a leftover from the past, who runs a cheap hotel, humiliates his cook before his guests—an his cook before his guests—an act that is sure to bring reprisals. The young driver, sympathetic to the aim of the new state, exhibits the usual white man's arrogance as soon as his vehicle suffers minor damage. The ser-vants of the independent regime, having stored up their wrath, show the same savagery to the travelers as was once shown them. All the reactions are senseless. They are responses to fear, to previous hurts, to the ence of charity. It is ironic that the couple in the car has-ten to the compound for safety, though in a fundamental sense, there can be no safety there either. Mr. Naipaul draws no overt moral, but it is present on every page.

In "Tell Me Who to Kill," a young man from the islands, out of petty and blind rivalry with his uncle's family, goes to London to support his brother in his studies. He denies and de-grades himself in various ways; he takes two jobs to accumulate money faster; he gets grandiose notions of owning his own busi-ness though he knows nothing about running it Vanity is the spur in all this. His brother is no student and isn't capable of being one. But no one faces up to the truth. At the end, tricked by his prother, his money gone, his energy drained, his loss complete, full of hate he looks around for revenge; "Tell me who to kill."

Mr. Naipaul's style in these stories seems leaner than in the past and much more somber. There is virtually none of the earlier playfulness. He appears to have settled for precision over abundance. Each detail and each incident is made to carry its weight in the narrative. The effect is not small-scaled, for in the title story he has created an entire country. He has not tidied up every loose strand. There is, for example, a Chinese circus that travels through these pages, whose meaning is more intriguing than clear But there is nothing unfinished in these polished novellas.

Mr. Lask is a New York Times book reviewer.

Dolphins a Mystery

Cowboys' Coach Knows What Warfield Can Do

By William N. Wallace DALLAS, Jan. 4 (NYT).—Tom "He kille Landry, the Dallas coach, charac-terized the Miami Dolphins, the Cowhess' opponent in the Super Bowl, is a "mystery" team yester-day. He made one exception:

Paul Warfield. "We haven't played them," Landry said at a news conference here, "and I've only seen them a couple of times on television. We know Warfield very we'l, having played against him."

The last time the Cowboys had a close look at the mercurial Mismi wide receiver was on Dec. 28, 1969, in the Cotton Bowl Cleveland trounced Dallas that day, 38-14, as Warfield caught eight passes for 99 yards. The next month he was traded to Miami for a first-draft choice. Cleveland converted to a rookle quarterback, Mike Phipps who has yet to play with any distinc-

"He killed us," said Tex Schramm, the Cowboy president, in recalling Warfield's performance, Schramm would have preferred the Baltimore Colts as a Super Bowl opponent because they are a known quantity, although the Cowboy players expressed no preference.

"It doesn't make any dif-ference who we play," said Mel Renfro, the cornerback, "just as long as we're there."

Schramm, watching Miami dismember the Colis on television after the Cowboys beat the 49ers Sunday, said, They (the Dol-phins) are a good team I just hope our people will learn to take them seriously."

The unknown for Landry is the Miami defense. "I know nothing at all about their defense," he said yesterday. "Except I do know. Shula and I have to assume we'll see a lot of the same thing we saw when he was coaching Baltimore."

Don Shula, the Miami coach, has a thorough insight into Landry and the Cowboys because Baltimore—where Shula used to coach—and Dallas were annual preseason opponents in the late 1960s.

Landry said he was very impressed with the Dolphins against the Coits and with the long run following an interception for Miami's second touchdown. Tve never seen blocking like that on (Dick) Anderson's interception."

Calvin Hill strained a ligament in his right knee when he was cutting into an open area and set for a big gain against the 49ers in the second period. The knee "locked," said Hill, and he gained Only four vards. Landry and Rill both feel the big halfback from Yale will be ready for the Dolphins on Jan. 16. The Cowboys begin workouts here tomorrow and will fly to New Orleans on Sunday, I don't think we have any advantage on account of experience," said Landry. "Shula offsets any edge we have. He has been Shula coached the Baltimore Super Bowl team that lost to the Jets three years ago.

Marquette's Chones Too Big for Wisconsin

World Cup event. It was her second victory in two days.

Jim Chones, called the "Big Man" feating the Tigers, 80-73; Ronby his teammates, scored a career nie Hogue and John Fraley high 31 points and grabbed 13 re- scored 23 points each to lead bounds to lead second-ranked : Marquette to a 72-60 victory over Wisconsin, Marquette now has a 9-0 won-lost mark.

"It was Jimmy's best game ver—by a ton," said Marquette coach Al McGuire of his 6-foot-11-inch center. "I think Jim-my's off to the races now." Wisconsin coach John Powless agreed.

Chones is the best big man in the country," Powless said. "He figures to get 20 or 25 against anybody if he plays hard." Powless tried a man-to-man, and then a zone defense against Marquette. Neither worked. "The defense we were playing was to try to disallow or limit the pass to the high post, because Chones can just turn around and pop from there."

Chones hit on 12 or 20 fieldgoal attempts, many from the high post. And when everybody ganged up on "Big Man," it left cophemice Manus Washington Two other members of the Associated Press top ten had to come from behind in the second half to win.

Ninth-ranked Virginia, trailing
57-51 with eight minutes to go, outscored Wake Forest, 17-3, in the next seven minutes to register s 74-64 Atlantic Coast Conference victory at Wake Forest. Virginia, 10-0, pulled shead 59-58 with 5:24 to go on a pair of free throws by Frank Dewitt. Earry Parkhill of Virginia led all scorers with 20 points and teammates Jim Hobgood added

No. 10 Ohio State, down by seven with 12 minutes to go out-scored Creighton, 18-4, and went on to post a 94-76 victory. Guard Allan Hornyak of the Buckeyes led all scorers with 26 points. Hornyak scored 15 and reserve Jack Wolfe added 10 down the stretch. In other major games, No. 15 Southwestern Louisiana outscored McNeese, 89-80, behind 32 points from 6-9 sophomore Roy Enron and 25 from Dwight Lamar. Ron King scored 24 points to help No. 20 Florida State to an 88-70 triumph over Denver in the first round of the Senior Bowl tournament. In the other first-round pairing. St. Louis whipped South Alabama, 78-61. Elsewhere, Wichita State edged Bradley, 71-67; Dayton upset Houston, 73-69, sophomore Lloyd Batts scored 27 points to lead Cincinnati past Drake, 81-78: Tulsa got 30 points from Steve Bracy and coasted past Trinity, Texas, 98-70, and lowa tripped Kansas, 81-68.

Mary Barnes, 6-8, scored 28 points and pulled down 21 rebounds as Providence defeated the Australian Nationals, 75-64; Vanderbilt spoiled the opening of Louisiana State's new $11.5-mil-

Georgia past Rollins, 112-77, and Texas-El Paso topped New Mexico State, 75-59.

Lakers' West, Goodrich to Start For West Stars

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) -Guards Jerry West and Gall Goodrich and center Wilt Chamrlain of the record-breaking Los Angeles Lakers were named yesterday to the West team for the National Basketball Association's 23d annual All-Star game. West and Goodrich, the acoring heroes in the Lakers' fantastic 31game winning streak, will be in the starting line-up for the game Jan. 18 at Philadelphia while Chamberlain will be the substitute for Kareem-Abdul Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks

by sportswriters and sportscasters in the 17 NBA cities, will be Spencer Haywood of the Seattle Supersonics and Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls Guard Oscar Robertson of Milwaukee and forward Cazzie Russell of the Golden State Wariors also were voted to the team. The nine Western Conference coaches will select six more players including one each from Detroit, Houston, Phoenix and Portland, since each club must have at least one representative. No more Lakers can be picked since there is a maximum of three players from each team allowed The East team will be announced later this week, This will be the 12th All-Star appearance each for West, Chamberlain and Robertson, just one short of Bob Cousy's record 13.

Frazier Paces Knicks NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UPI).-Walt Frazier capped a string of 13 straight points by scoring the winning basket on a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining last night to give the New York Knicks a 101-99 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks. Frazier started his remarkable shooting spree with the Knicks trailing, 93-88, and two minutes to go. He tied the score at 95-95 on a three-point play with 1:30 to go and then traded baskets with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to tie

After the race, won by the French skier, Hank Tauber, the United States women's coach said: "They're missing that final hit of punch that takes them from fifth or sixth place to the winner's circle and that's got to come out of their own hearts. Tauber was shaking his head

-"I am really puzzled"-after the best any of his girls could do in the special sialom was an eighth place by Barbara Cochran of Richmond, Vt. Barbara, 21 today, had a poor first run, posted the fourth fastest time on the second heat and said: "Tve got to learn to let myself go in the Tanber added: "She's skiing well. She's just got no punch."

Miss Macch's "punch" has been of knockout quality lately.

This was her third straight victory, her second in two days, and she now leads the World Cup standings by 27 points over Anne-Marie Proell of Austria, who was fifth today. The French girl, 20, is the only skier to have scored in all six Cup races this season and has not been worse than

Miss Macchi was not known as a statom skier until this season. Still starting from the second seed in this specialty, she has won both sialoms this season, edging Rosi Mittermaier of West Ger-many both times. The Macchi attack came on the second heat, when she rallied from fifth place with the fastest second-run time, 43.65 seconds for 450 meters through 48 gates.

On the 400-meter (quarter-mile) first run, she was timed in 34.82 seconds for a winning total of 78.47, .44 second better than Miss Mittermaier's.

Danièle Debernard and Florence Steurer were third and fourth, respectively, as the French placed five girls in the top ten. At that, they were unlucky. Britt Lef-forgue had the fastest unofficial time (34.19 seconds) on the first run, but was disqualified for missing a gate. Michèle Jacot, first with 34.46 after the opening heat, missed a gate on the second

Barbara Cochran, despite her poor first run, finished only fivehundredths of a second out of fifth place. Her older sister, Marilyn. was the next United States finisher, placing 12th despite mistakes on both runs. Karen Budge of Jackson, Wyo., was 14th.

"Our racers are better than our results," said Tauber, frankly concerned by what he calls a lack of "prazz" in the girls. "You can look for theories—we train too much; we train too little—but you'd only be kidding yourself. The key is just to get in there and ski like hell."

The girls' next chance will come Friday in a giant slalom at Maribor, Yugoslavia. The men resume competition Sunday in Berchtesgaden, West Germany. There are only 30 days to the opening of the Winter Olympics.

Anne Henning and Snoopy Skate Toward Gold Medal

NORTHBROOK, Ill., Jan. 4 (UPI).—Anne Henning, the women's world record holder in 500-meter speed skating. packed her skates and Snoopy doll mascot last week and set off for the 1972 Winter Olympics via Europe. The 16-year-old blonde high school junior plans to train and compete in three European countries as a warmup to the Olympics, which opens Feb. 3 in Sapporo. Japan. When Anne returns to Northbrook in mid-February, along with five other Illinois members of the 16-member U.S. team she hopes to be carrying at least one gold medal—along with a new world record. "I'm definitely aiming to get below 42 seconds. That's one of my goals right now," said the young skating speedster. In Germany last year, Anne set a world record of 42,75 seconds and this year in Germany she bettered that record

Anne cheerfully admits she was surprised about her ability

"I started skating competitively about six years ago. My out and won everything. I don't even know how I did it."

she said. Anne competed American-style, racing with the pack, for the first few years. Then another Northbrook skater, Diane Holum, came home from the 1968 Olympics with a silver and bronze medal, and their coach suggested Anne switch styles. "Diane Holum's always been my inspiration. I always looked up to her as being some super skater, you know, Miss Henung said. Within a year, Anne was beating her hero in the Olympicstyle 500-meter, skating against the clock with just one other skater to push her on. By last year, Anne was skating faster than Diane in the 1,000-meter as well and it was clear that the Chicago suburb of Northbrook was building a stronger claim to the title of speed skating capital of America. So far, the blonde whiz kid has little to worry about in the way of competition in the 500-meter. While she tries to break the 42-second mark, most women sprinters are doing

Soviet Union Finishes First in World Cup

BLOOMINGTON, Minn., Jac. 4 (UPI).—Czechoslovakia stupned the world champion Sovie: Union team, 6-1, in the final of the World Cup ice hockey tournament last night. The Soviets, who still won the tourney with a 3-1 won-lost rec-ord, had lost only four games in world and Olympic competition in the last four years, including two losses to the Caechs in last year's world tournament.

Only a few on this Czech team are expected to play for the more highly-rated Czech Olympic team in the 1972 Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, next month.

The Czechs, who lost their first three tourney games, including an 8-3 trouncing by the Russians, moved to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Karel Dovrak and Kiri Holik.

Joses Augusta made it 3-0 at 13 minutes 6 seconds of the second period. Boris Mikhailor then cored Russia's only goal, but Mirosle Krasa, brilliant in the Czech net throughout the game, shut out the Soviets the rest of the way and wound up with 40

Aussie Women Are Liberated By Tennis Group

MELEOURNE, Jan. 4 (Reuters), -The Australian Lawn Tennis Association yesterday reinstated three women stars who in De-cember had been declared not in good standing" by the association.
The Australians—Judy Dalton, Kerry Melville and Lesley Huntwere disciplined for competing in a New Zealand tournament when they were required to play in the Queensland championships. While they were "not in good standing," the girls were barred from competing in any tourna-ment sanctioned by the Inter-national Lawn Tennis Federachoice of Johan Cruyff, centerforward of Ajax and the Netherlands, as European Footballer of the Year for 1971 is one with which nobody could quarrel. I myself, when casting the British vote in the poll, chose him a couple of years ago, when the award escaped him.

He was magnificent in 71, playing superbly in the European Cup final at Wembley against Panithinaikos of Greece. Behind him come Sandrino Mazzola of Internazionale and Italy, in second place, and George Best of Manchester United and Northern Ireland, a former winner of the distinction, and surely the best footballer in the world. Nevertheless, Cruyff deserved the

All three players demonstrate one of the greatest attractions of soccer: its physical democracy. Cruyif and Mazzola are slight, almost emaciated, men; Best is only 5 feet 8 1/2 inches. What they lack in size, however, they more than atone for in courage.

Though Mazzola is now-by choice-a midfield player he, too, LONDON, Jan. 4 (IHT).—The has played successfully in the imminent deadly breach as a striker. You cannot intimidate these men. Cruyif once said that when an opponent fouls him, he does not retaliate directly; his way of revenge is to make the man look ridiculous by continually beating him. Best has rejoiced this season in the English Refereeing Revolution. which has given him a measure of freedom from ill usage. Mazzola's problem—and ter's—is where he should play. Till the European Nations Cup final replay of 1968, in Rome against Yugoslavia, he was essentially a striker, a front-running goal scorer. Then Mazzola, son of the great Torino and Italy inside-left Valentino, who died in the Superga air crash of 1949. as a midfield player. This metamorphosis has brought him into conflict both with Gianni Rivera, of A.C. Milan, for so long the unchallenged general of the Italian team, and the impulsive Mario Corso, his club mate, who wrote on the blackboard at Inter's training ground last season: MAZZOLA: PLAY MORE AND TALK LESS. Mazzola wanted to leave Inter at the end of last season, and Corso drily remarked, "If Mazzola wants a team all to himself, he should buy one." Abundant libations of money put things right. and the problem was both eased and complicated when Corso was suspended until the end of 1972 from all European competitions, after kicking the referee in the notorious Borussia Munchengladbach-Inter match last October.

This meant that Mazzola did virtually have his "own" team in European Cup matches, and he responded with two brilliant displays in the ensuing matches with Borussia. For the Italian Championship, the hapless young manager, Gianni Invernizzi, protesting vehemently but unconvincingly that "there is no such thing as a Corso team and a Marzola team," tried to compromise by pushing Mazzola up into the forward line, to acore goals. It just won't work. Who wants to revert to being a subsidiary when he has for so long been primary?

Cruyif, meanwhile, has been agitating on behalf of the Dutch international team manager, Dr. Fadrhonk. The Dutch Football Federation is dissatisfied with Fadrhonk, no doubt wanting to make him the scapegoat of the national team's deeply disappointing performances (they falled to qualify either for the World Cup or the European Cup finals. despite the pre-eminence of Alax and Feyenoord in European club competition). Cruyff and the international players, however, like him and want him to stay. The recent 2-1 victory at home over Scotland suggested that there is basically little wrong with the Dutch team. Certainly, it can call on as much talent—Cruyff, Keizer, Israel, Hulshoff, Van Hanegem-as any in Europe.

But that was silly. More likely, when he saw Kissinger giving one of his lectures on government, it was really Nixon wearing a Kissinger disguise. Anyhow, all that is a digression, just a little background, as the heavy columnists call it, to explain why it was so good seeing Nixon there in the cellar with Dan Rather. Dan had the feel of reality about him, although he worked for television. You knew that Dan would have spotted it immediately if it had been Kissinger under a Nixon mask, and Dan's face would have shown that something was wrong.

The point is that it was comforting seeing Nixon that first night of the campaign. As the year wore on, however, some of the comfort wore off down in the cellar, and later there were nights

All over the country people must have asked the same mestion because immediately after the show, the network news division assembled a panel of four correspondents to debate who the President's opponent was. They could not agree: and the White House, when asked for clarification, hedged until the question was forgotten under the onset of the football season.

In the heat of the campaign the President resorted, as he had in 1968, to the hand-picked panel show. In these he submitted to questioning by panels of interrogators selected from the families of the White House staff. The President stood up marvelously under the grilling and lost his temper only once.

That was when a panel member asked him, for the third consecutive week, "Mr. President, why do young people like you so SAIGON (NYT).—When many GIs leave Vietnam, they do not leave behind their loved ones. In 1969, for example, American soldiers took home 270 dogs, 33 cats, 19 reptiles, 20 monkeys, 26 birds, one fox and three lizards.

Although it is uncertain whether any GI ever truly cared for a rat. American troops have loved squirrels, ocelots, coatimondie, or "banana cats" as they are called in Vietnam, nonpoisonous anakes such as pythons, and parakeets.

The dogs of Vietnam have won far more American hearts than the Vietnamese people ever did. Wherever there were American troops, there was a dog. The names of these mascots-some of them were Dink, Gook, Slut, Pimp, Old Dog, Rat -were not always a measure of the affection felt for them.

At Long Bin Post outside Saigon, where 23,000 U.S. troops are stationed, animals are everywhere. They are constant com-panions and a consolation to many bored and lonely young men.

A Python

There is Sgt. Harry Bybee, raised on the Crow Indian reservation in Montana, who openly shows his devotion to a 9-foot-long, 24-pound python known as George or Georgette. The sex of this make is not known. It lives in a cage in Sgt. Bybee's office and is often let loose to slither around. Others who work in the room do not seem to mind.

"She likes the floor because it's cool," Sergeant Bybee said. "And after eating, she likes to have her nose scratched and, boy, she is crazy about showers. I am away a lot and when I come back, she really perks up and gives a little hiss."

Snoopy is the eight-month-old dog of Spec. 4 Ronald Campbell of Clarksburg, W. Va., who feeds him steak from the mess hall. Spec. Campbell is a security guard at one of the main gates to Long Binh. "It's someone to be with all the time." he soldier said. "I'd never be able to the soldier said.

"It's not a common poodle practice," said Capt. Richard P. McGivaren, the chief veterinarian, speaking of the dogs GIs bring in. PEOPLE:

Steve Smith has been fired What's more, he's been sacked And the former hurt more than the latter, according to Smith, where career as a cannonball began and ended Monday in Lekester, England. Smith, a 22-year-old stunt-man, was among several dozen Britons who answered an adver-tisement for someone "able to withstand shock and prepared to travel" placed in a local paper by showman Joe Westen-Webb People Dec. 22 et seq.1. Weston-Webb looked over the applicants and selected Smith as fust about right for the opening. He underestimated his man. The 220-pound stuniman, it turned out, was just too big to roll out the barrel, though he gave it the old college bry. Clad in goggies and crash helmet. Smith slid into the mouth of the 16-foot gun Monday night. A one-pound charge of gelignite was inserted into the other end. At the moment of truth, Smith took off-along with most of the cannon barrel. Both landed ten feet away in a pool of water. The other half of the gun back-fired, wrecking the truck used as a launching pad. Surveying the damage, estimated at $350, Weston-Webb calculated that Smith was just too tight, and had jammed a special plate fitted into the cannon to cushion the blast. Otherwise, said Weston-Webb, "he would have flown 60 feet." Said Smith: "Never again. It's the last time I travel that way."

The chimp watched the painter for a short while, then sported, knocked the man to the floor, took up his brush, tried out a few dabs on the painter's feet, and finished painting the cage. Furthermore, said Fuer Dich, the chimp did an excellent job.

Mrs. O. later left for New York, alone. while Ari stayed in London "on business." "It is complete nonsense," Mr. Onassis said yesterday of the alleged row.
